

✈️ Airline Passenger & Network Analytics

Passenger Demand | Airport Performance | Capacity Utilization

Total Passengers

9.7bn

Total Flights

134M

Average Flight Distance

697.3

Load Factor

66.42%

Passengers per Flight

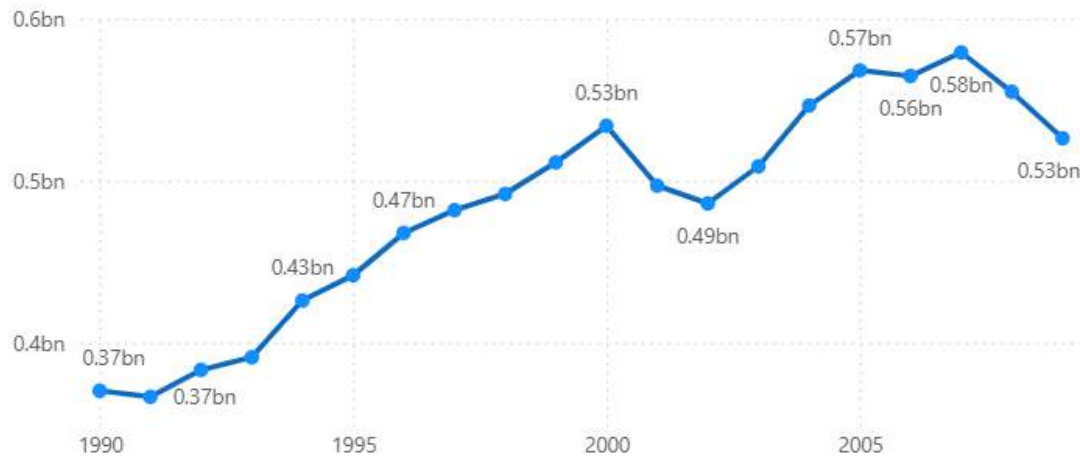

72

Year

All

Passenger Demand Trend

Top Origin Airports by Passenger Volume

Passenger volume increased from ~0.38bn to a peak of ~0.58bn, representing more than 50% growth. ATL and ORD lead the top 10 origin airports with 577M and 529M passengers, together accounting for ~33% of top-10 volume.

Average passengers per flight peaked around 78–79 before falling to ~63 in 2003, then recovering to ~73 by 2009.

Average Passengers per Flight Trend

✈ Flight Networks & Capacity Analysis

Route Performance | Capacity vs Demand | Utilization Analysis

Unique Routes

37K

Total Seats

15bn

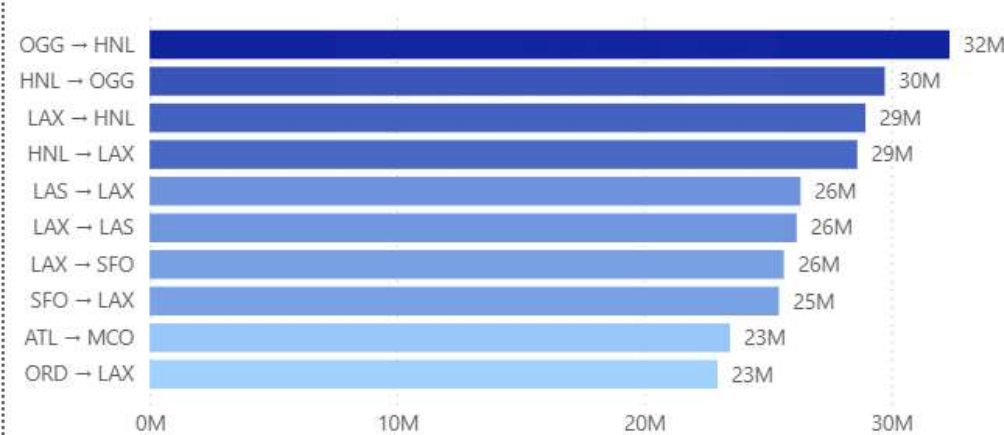

Load Factor

66.42%

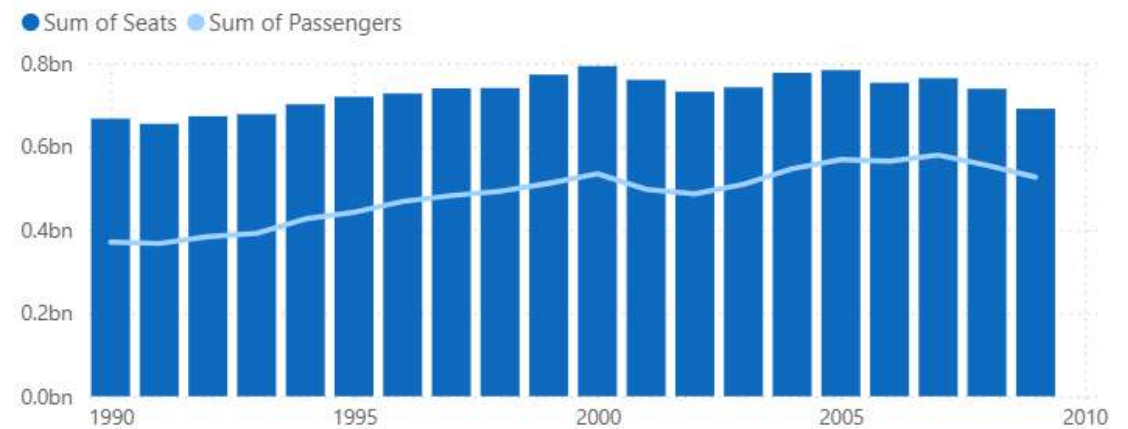

Unused Seat Capacity

5bn

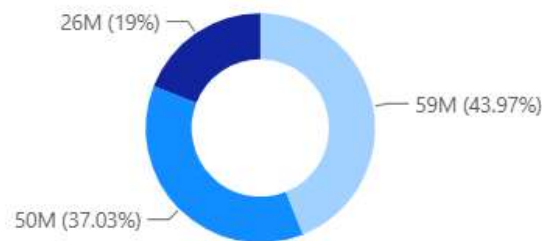

Top 10 Routes by Passenger Volume

Capacity vs Passenger Demand Trend

Flights by Utilization Segment

Utilization Segment ● Medium Utilization ● Low Utilization ● High Utilization

Hawaii-related routes dominate the highest-volume routes, with OGG→HNL leading the network. Seats and passenger demand generally increased over time, with capacity growing faster during certain periods.

Only ~19% of flights fall into the high-utilization segment, indicating potential room to improve capacity efficiency